Hate your friends 'cos they're the only ones That make you want to die And they make their scene The priss and preen, they'll never get it right The mirror on the living room wall Ain't been too kind since you hit grade four But honestly the last thing he'll say tonight Just put your things away You know it's just not your time He's the boy you got He's the ticket stub that never won a prize And and there's no hard sell 'cos he's got a face Came straight from a fight But he answers [unverified] calls And he's under six feet tall But honestly the last thing he'll say tonight Just put your things away You know it's just not your time He's big and dumb like a dagwood dog His jeans never fit quite right But there's a razor blade cut And a feeling in your gut that says There ain't no way to disguise it Hate your friends 'cos they're the only ones That make you want to die And they make their scene The priss and preen, they'll never get it right The ones who shine so bright Are made or broke come Friday night But honestly the last thing he'll say tonight Just put your things away You know it's just not your He's big and dumb like a dagwood dog His jeans never fit quite right But there's a razor blade cut And a feeling in your gut that says There ain't no way to disguise it But honestly the last thing he'll say tonight Just put your things away You know it's just not your time That's the way we're gonna get it right
